Do you remember your school days?

What were you like? No wait, better yet... what were your short comings? Did you have anything that you would have changed or at least -liked to have had a hand with? I think we all had some rough times in our own unique ways. What if there was a little doll that could give you some "good mojo" for those times? As kids go back to school, I recently came across these little "dolls" that can be used as a keychain... for their lockers, school bags, etc.

"Meet The String Doll Gang®, a band of kooky characters handmade in Thailand, each String Doll has his or her own special power that is always positive and helpful (no voodoo dolls here)!" I was so taken by these $10 works of art!!

There are so many great characters with such helpful "powers" to choose from!! Roller girl "Drew Block-her-more" keeps her opponents in check. Isabelly "shimmies your shyness away". The nerdy little "Dexter" helps you fly through your home work. Medusa "turns annoying people into stone".

Awesome.

This is a great Deity Complex™ piece because it's a product that explores different personalities.

There are so many to choose from you are sure to find that special doll that helps with your child's particular...umm... challenge. I think the String Doll Gang is a lovely example of something that is essentially for kids but adults can really appreciate... coz those little "issues" can often linger into adulthood... right?
