Get your freak on

I've seen my neighbor's tween struggling with a full school backpack, so I may have to play Santa and pass a Freak-O-Bag her way for those days when a few extra books threaten to topple her onto her back.

Now, even my mom knows how smart it is to keep a portable bag folded up and clipped to her pocketbook, but trust me, these are no grandma bags. Instead, the Freak-O-Bag normally looks like a little creature dangling from wherever it is clipped. But, when needed, the "pets" transform into a generous 16"x16" reusable tote.

The original fair trade bags were made by the Koonin family in Thailand with colorful button eyes and teeny-tiny bodies. Now, there are silk screened styles designed by North Carolina's Julie Armbruster and sewn at North Carolina's Opportunity Threads. Don't stress over which of them to choose though; all of them are cool enough that even a tween who'd never be caught dead carrying something as practical as a reusable shopping bag will be impressed that you were cool enough to find her this one. - Christina

Over 10 different Freak-O-Bags are available at Kamibashi.com.

EXTRA COOL: WIN IT! We have an original Koonin Family Freak-O-Bag of your choice to give away to one lucky reader. Just send an email to contests@coolmompicks.com by midnight PT with FREAK in the subject and include the names of your two favorite Koonin Family bags. Good luck!
