It's taken every ounce of willpower not to buy every one of these!

I've just discovered these - though perhaps those of you with girls in the family have probably heard of or seen these String Doll Gang figurines.

They're made from string - each figure is wound, twisted, looped and wrapped in one continuous piece of string, handmade in Thailand. The company behind this cuteness is Kamibashi, owned by an American couple who used to teach English in Thailand. They maintain Fair Trade practices and the artisans who make the String Doll Gang is based in rural farming villages in Northern Thailand. You can read about The Making of a New String Doll Character.
